The national clearinghouse of data on the nonprofit sector in the United States.

The National Center for Charitable Statistics (NCCS) is the national repository of data on the nonprofit sector in the United States. Its mission is to develop and disseminate high quality data on nonprofit organizations and their activities for use in research on the relationships between the nonprofit sector, government, the commercial sector, and the broader civil society.

Working closely with the IRS and other government agencies, private sector service organizations, and the scholarly community, NCCS builds compatible national, state, and regional databases and develops uniform standards for reporting on the activities of charitable organizations.

The Center was established in 1982 and has been a project of the Center on Nonprofits and Philanthropy (CNP) at the Urban Institute since July 1996, when it was transferred from the research division of INDEPENDENT SECTOR.

Thanks for a great conference!

Larry Jensen speaks about German research at the FEEFHS/SGGEE conference.

FEEFHS and the Society for German Genealogy in Eastern Europe held a joint conference in July 2009 in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. More than 100 attendees heard a dozen speakers on a wide variety of topics.

Sixteen of the presentations given at the conference have been made available by the speakers and are on this website. You will find them on our Conference Program page.

Welcome to FEEFHS!

Coming this fall!

FEEFHS will soon offer a couple of new directories -- one listing genealogical speakers, and one listing genealogical research services.

These directories will be open to all members of FEEFHS. They will be of interest to genealogical societies planning conferences, as well as individuals looking for help with their research.

If you would like to be included in either of these directories (or both) please contact webmaster Dave Obee.

For the full list, go to our Resource directory.

The Federation of East European Family History Societies (FEEFHS) was organized in 1992 as an umbrella organization that promotes family research in eastern and central Europe without any ethnic, religious, or social distinctions. It provides a forum for individuals and organizations focused on a single country or group of people to exchange information and be updated on developments in the field. While it primarily serves the interests of North Americans in tracing their lineages back to a European homeland, it welcomes members from all countries.

FEEFHS.org is one of the true veterans of the Internet, linking Central and East European researchers since the spring of 1996. We helped many of our member societies make their move onto the Web at a time when HTML coding was still a mysterious art and Google was just an idea.

For comments on this site, please contact webmaster Dave Obee with your suggestions.

If you have information of interest to Eastern European researchers, please contact Journal Editor Thom Edlund.

Contact us by Email | FEEFHS, P.O. Box 510898, Salt Lake City UT 84151-0898

The FEEFHS mailing list provides a forum for genealogists to share their problems and solutions with each other. It allows for a great exchange of ideas. And best of all, it's free! More information about the FEEFHS mailing list is on the Rootsweb site.

Welcome to the Global Anabaptist Mennonite Encyclopedia Online

GAMEO provides Reliable information on Anabaptist-related (Amish, Mennonite, Hutterite, Brethren in Christ) topics, including history, theology, biography, institutions and local congregations. Secular topics from an Anabaptist perspective and full-text source documents are also included.

Who We Are | Sponsors | What's New

Sample article: Rembrandt Harmensz van Rijn (1607-1669)

Rembrandt Harmensz van Rijn (Ryn), probably the greatest painter of the Western world, was born 15 July 1607 at Leiden, and died 4 October 1669 at Amsterdam. In an age when the tradition of Christian painting had been practically abandoned in the Netherlands under the influence of the Dutch Reformed spirit, Rembrandt devoted about one third of his life's work to the depiction of Biblical scenes. Contrary to the trend of contemporary art, in which the "genre" picture, still life, and seascapes predominated, he founded a new style of interpretation of the Bible. To be sure, the young painter frequently drew his themes from the Bible because of the wealth of dramatic material found there, especially in the Old Testament. But after the death of his wife Saskia in 1642 an increasing religious sincerity becomes evident in Rembrandt's work. Especially his etchings and drawings (there are about 600 of these showing Biblical scenes) show Rembrandt's reactions to the message of the Gospel.

Officially Rembrandt was a member of the Reformed Church, and as yet there has been no evidence that he severed this connection in spite of serious conflicts with the church council, such as the exclusion of Hendrickje Stoffels from communion in 1653, who lived with him after his wife's death. Nevertheless there is some indication that Rembrandt was in close contact with Mennonite circles and from them received essential religious motivations.

As of 20 February 2009 GAMEO includes or updates all articles that were published in volumes 1-5 of Mennonite Encyclopedia published by Herald Press of Scottdale, Pennsylvania and Waterloo, Ontario. On that date there were 14,160 articles in GAMEO. Thanks to the many volunteers who made this possible.

GAMEO is a project of the Mennonite Historical Society of Canada, Mennonite Church USA Historical Committee, Mennonite Brethren Historical Commission, Mennonite Central Committee and Mennonite World Conference.

Who We Are

Contents

The Global Mennonite Encyclopedia Online began in 1996 as a project of the Mennonite Historical Society of Canada (under the name Canadian Mennonite Encyclopedia Online). It was intended to be a dynamic source of information about the Anabaptist-Mennonite groups in Canada. It emerged from a congregational database created by Marlene Epp for the three-volume Mennonites in Canada history series. Later the Society obtained permission from Herald Press in Scottdale, PA to copy and modify entries of the four-volume Mennonite Encyclopedia published in the 1950s, and a supplemental fifth volume published in 1990. In 2005 two partners -- the Mennonite Brethren Historical Commission and the Mennonite Church USA Historical Committee -- joined the project, and expanded it to become a English-language Global Anabaptist Mennonite Encyclopedia Online (GAMEO). Mennonite Central Committee joined the partnership in early 2006 and Mennonite World Conference in January 2007.

The project in time will include the full text of the print Mennonite Encyclopedia, and will add new content both from North America and around the world. Additional partners will be added as possible, and content in non-English languages is possible at a future time. Because of this expansion it was necessary to move to a new website, devoted entirely to GAMEO.

Articles in GAMEO are assigned and editorially reviewed before upload; GAMEO is not a "Wiki"-style project. Encyclopedia subjects include, but are not limited to, history, statistics, biography, education, the arts and family history. The Encyclopedia Search provides for a word or phrase search on the Encyclopedia's content, or browsing an alphabetical index.

If you have corrections or suggestions for an encyclopedia article, please contact the Managing Editor. Be specific in your comments and give the exact name/address of the article (this can be copied from the bottom of each article).

Our Mission

The Global Anabaptist Mennonite Encyclopedia Online provides reliable, freely-available English-language information on Anabaptist-related congregations, denominations, conferences, institutions and significant individuals, as well as historical and theological topics. Secular subject articles from an Anabaptist perspective and full-text source documents are also included.

Rocky Cape Christian Community

Who We Are

We, the families and single residents of the Rocky Cape Christian Community, come from various places around the world. Some of us live here on a permanent basis, others are here for a time. Some of us grew up in Christian homes, others did not.

Together we form an Anabaptist (Hutterite) community, baptising believers on confession of faith, holding our goods in common, and choosing non-violence as followers of Christ.

While we have close and direct links to other Anabaptist communities like ours, we seek fellowship with all serious believers regardless of their background or credentials—that know Christ and follow him. We accept the baptism, church order, and witness of other groups beside our own.

A number of us at Rocky Cape belong to families that fled for their faith from Switzerland, Austria, and Germany during the 1500s. From there, we found our way through Eastern Europe to America and Australia. But this is only one detail of a much more involving story that began with . . .

A Strange Assignment Long Ago

"You will receive power," Jesus told a small group of friends that followed him to sunny heights above Galilee, "when the Holy Spirit comes on you. And you will be my witnesses in Jerusalem, in all Judaea and Samaria, and to the ends of the earth." Then he was taken up before their eyes and a cloud hid him from their sight.

The little group stood and stared.

Only a short while before this Jesus had told them the secret of the Kingdom of God (Mark 4:11). They had just begun to know what that kingdom included and who would belong to it. But of the "ends of the earth" they knew nothing—nor how to get there. Much less of the people or a place on the other side of the world called . . .

Tangdimmaa

On bare feet, swift but sure, the first people at Tangdimmaa clambered up the rocks to caves high above the surf. Watchful mothers that lived in the caves loved their children—lithe woolly-haired boys and girls that romped about them with quick wide smiles—on foraging trips to the sea. But to feed them posed a daily challenge, and for this they depended on the men and grown boys at Tangdimmaa.

All winter long, after short-tailed shearwaters had flown, and storms drove the waves in night-long thunder onto rocks below, the men of Tangdimmaa hunted possums and kangaroo. Far into the dripping bush they followed cushioned trails under tea trees and towering gums. Raucous birds told them where berries had turned

To find our place, half way between Burnie and Smithton, Tasmania, look for what used to be the Araluen Camp at Detention River. A sign marks the main entry off the Bass Highway.

To find our place on Google Earth or Maps, look for the Rocky Cape National Park on the Northwest Coast of Tasmania. Move westward from the park, along the beach toward Stanley, until you see the Detention River estuary with a large bridge crossing the river. Our community sits just east of the bridge and petrol station, a cluster of buildings on the south side of the Bass Highway.

"It was like the works of a clock where every cogwheel drives another, and everything turns in an orderly way, or like a hive of bees where all work together, some making wax, some making honey, and some carrying nectar to the hive," (Klaus Braitmichel, ca 1540).

intentional community database

about icdb.org

icdb.org came out of the desperate need for a paper-free and up-to-date intentional community directory which will serve both communities and their organizations and community seekers.

the hundreds of hours which went into designing and programming this project were so far spent mostly by a volunteer called ofek, who has traveled extensively visiting intentional communities around the world (see economads.com). Aron Heintz has been quite active with communicating to the people in the FIC and providing feedback together with Elph (who provided the initial data), Charles and Tony.

the design and source code is in the process of being organized so it can be opened to contributions. icdb.org will always be public, open, and free.

Hutterite Directory

Hutterites are a communal people, living on scattered bruderhöfe or colonies throughout the prairies in North America.
This communal lifestyle finds its roots in the biblical teachings of Christ and the Apostles. Emerging as a distinct culture and religious group in the early 16th century, this non-resistant Anabaptist sect endured great persecution and death at the hands of the state and church in medieval Europe. However, the Hand of God remained on the shoulder of these people, and their descendents survived to battle on to this very day...

Learn about our unique lifestyle, religion, customs, traditions and history. Discover how we earn our living, and what we do in our leisure time.   Listen to Hutterian choirs and find out what our schools are like.

About the Hutterite Directory

This web application provides contact information for Hutterite colonies and businesses including, but not limited to, phone, fax, switchboard, email, websites and maps.

We just added all the Lehrerleut and Dariusleut colonies to Schmiedeleut collection we previously made available.

This project has become the most comprehensive hutterite contact directory online.

We took special care to make this site work well on smaller screens, a fact you'll appreciate when you're accessing from a mobile device.

It doesn't stop here

The contact information which appears in this directory is being integrated with upcoming versions of Members and Pocket Members.

Because this data is presented to such a wide audience, it is important that you report any errors you happen to find while using the service.
